A highly engaging discussion was conducted with the MBA students of RV College of Management on the essential skills required to build successful careers in the coming decades. The session highlighted the rapid changes in the business environment and the competencies young professionals must develop to stay relevant and future-ready

The objectives of the session were:

- To help students understand the emerging skill sets required for future careers.
- To highlight the importance of data literacy, emotional intelligence, and creativity.
- To encourage continuous learning and multi-dimensional thinking
- To prepare students to navigate an information-heavy and fast-changing world.

The Key Skills Discussed:

- Data Literacy:

Understanding how to use data effectively to make informed and accurate business decisions. Students were introduced to the importance of data interpretation, business analytics, and evidence-based decision-making.

- Emotional Intelligence (EQ):

Highlighted as the most important skill. Students learned how EQ supports leadership, teamwork, conflict resolution, and overall workplace success.

- Creative and Design Thinking:

The importance of creativity in innovation was emphasized along with human-centered problem-solving through design thinking.

- Multi-Dimensional Understanding of Business:

Students were encouraged to look beyond silos and understand business from finance, marketing, technology, and social perspectives simultaneously.

- Time Management in the Age of Information Overload:

The discussion focused on prioritization, digital discipline, and managing distractions effectively.

- Continuous Learning:

Students were inspired to adopt a lifelong learning approach to stay adaptable and competitive.

Interaction and Engagement:

The students participated with high levels of curiosity and enthusiasm. Their intelligent questions reflected deep interest in understanding how to align their skills with the expectations of the future job market. The discussion showcased their potential and promised a bright future for them and for India.

Conclusion

The session provided students with clarity on the evolving skill landscape and motivated them to invest in self-development. The blend of analytical, emotional, creative, and strategic skills highlighted during the session equips students to thrive in the dynamic business world of the coming decades
