2. Executive Summary

The orientation phase of the International Taxation Course (ITC) with a specialized focus on US Taxation was organized for the 2nd-semester MBA cohort in the Seminar Hall. Following the successful delivery of this corporate program in the previous academic year, the session featured Mr. L. Muralidharan as the expert resource person. He introduced all 180 students to global taxation frameworks, operational career pathways, and the strategic value-add of international certifications. The program outlined the structured delivery roadmap planned for subsequent weekend sessions to ensure integration with the regular academic calendar. Attendance was strictly mandatory, and student engagement was monitored as part of the institutional mandate for holistic professional development and corporate readiness.

3. Objectives of the Event

- To orient management students on the structure, curriculum roadmap, and expectations of the upcoming International Taxation Course (ITC) – US Taxation.
- To highlight professional career opportunities within big-4 audit firms, investment banks, and global corporate finance divisions.
- To outline the administrative guidelines, schedule, and course fee structure required for formal enrollment.

4. Project Components and Variable Definitions

The orientation session evaluated student awareness and baseline interest across specific professional and administrative pillars:

Global Career Mapping and Competency Alignment

Students assessed how a specialized understanding of US taxation bridges regional academic baselines with practical corporate requirements in transnational audit firms and investment banking units.

Program Architecture and Financial Guidelines

The session detailed the delivery mechanics of the value-added certification, emphasizing its scheduled execution over weekends and a structured registration fee of Rs. 5,000/- per student.

5. Instructions

- Attendance was strictly mandatory for all 180 registered students of the 2nd semester.
- Unauthorized absence without prior sanctioned permission or verified medical/personal emergencies resulted in strict disciplinary review, including the immediate temporary suspension of institutional platform privileges (such as Coursera licenses).
- The official online registration link was scheduled for release immediately post-session to facilitate a streamlined enrollment window.
- Regular afternoon classes and academic schedules resumed post-lunch following the conclusion of the orientation session.

6. Outcomes Attained

- Students developed an introductory appreciation for global taxation frameworks and their relevance to modern workplace competencies.
- Enhanced professional clarity regarding the specialized skills required by premier multinational finance and compliance recruiters.
- Reinforced institutional standards of discipline, academic rigor, and professional accountability from the inception of the semester.
